Lester Sanders Wins Bowsher Memorial Cup

Monroe Senior Is Voted Award By Wide Margin By 11 Coaches

A loose-limbed, easy-going Monroe Township lad has been singled out for the highest individual honor awarded in Pickaway County basketball play.

He is Lester Sanders, 18-year-old pivot man for the Monroe Indians championship basketball team, winner of the 1951 Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy award.

Sanders was named by a comparatively wide margin by the 11 coaches of Pickaway County for the Bob Bowsher award, an annual presentation made to the outstanding athlete in tournament competition by The Circleville Herald.

Although the balloting by the coaches and the later tabulation of votes was conducted with the utmost secrecy, many fans who saw Sanders perform in the 1951 tournament will not be surprised by the selection.

That is because Sanders stood out prominently during the tournament with all of the qualities necessary for winning this year's highest cage honor.

Sanders' name will be fitted on the Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy along with a trio of other county basketball stars who earned the high honor by their outstanding conduct during past tournaments.

Jim Picklesimer of Williamsport is the first name engraved on the Bob Bowsher trophy. Picklesimer earned the singular honor during the 1950 county tournament—and his selection surprised only a few who had seen the tournament.

Bob Pontius of Walnut was the next outstanding lad to receive the nod—and again the winner had proved his qualities so capably on the court that only a few were surprised.

WINNER OF THE 1950 award was Bill Rowley of Darby, and Rowley was pegged from the start of the voting by fans "in the know" as the winner.

So it was with Sanders this year. Wherever a few fans gathered during this year's tournament to air the probable selection for the 1951 Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy award, the name of Lester Sanders was the first to be voiced.

But what was it about Sanders which made him the most likely candidate for the 1951 top award?

Sanders was not an outstanding scorer during this year's tournament. In fact, he ranked at about the halfway mark in the list of scorers with only 28 points for his team's three games. High tournament scoring record was 69 points.

The major item which came to the fans' attention to pinpoint Sanders for the honor occurred when his team met the Ashville

Broncos in a crucial test in the semifinals.

SANDERS AT one time during the contest was accused of a personal foul which he—and the horde of fans rooting for Monroe—believed was unnecessary.

Instead of slamming the ball to the floor or sulking or becoming mad, Sanders did what was characteristic of him.

Sanders quietly laid the ball down on the playing floor and calmly walked away from it, without a word of protest.

Monroe Coach Clyde Plant had this to say about the reaction of the lad:

"He talked to me later," Plant said, "and told me he didn't think it was a foul on him. But he said 'but the referee knows best' and let it go at that."

The Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy is awarded annually by The Herald in an effort to promote good sportsmanship, teamwork and cooperation among the players in the county tournaments.

The award was originated in 1948 as a memorial to Bob Bowsher, one of the first ward-dead heroes to be returned to native Pickaway County soil for burial.

Bob Bowsher was a chunky athlete in Circleville high school who played the game—almost any sport—down to the line in an effort to win, but foremost with the effort to win cleanly.

That is the way of it with Lester Sanders.

BOB BOWSHER competed in football, basketball, track and boxing. His forte was good sportsmanship, teamwork and cooperation.

Soviets OK Big 4 Talks

Powers To Meet Monday In Paris

MOSCOW, March 1—Soviet Russia agreed today to meet with the Western Powers in Paris Monday to prepare for a new Big Four foreign ministers conference.

Notification to this effect was given to the ambassadors of the United States, Great Britain and France by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The Soviets appointed a 17-man delegation of deputies to handle the preparatory talks.

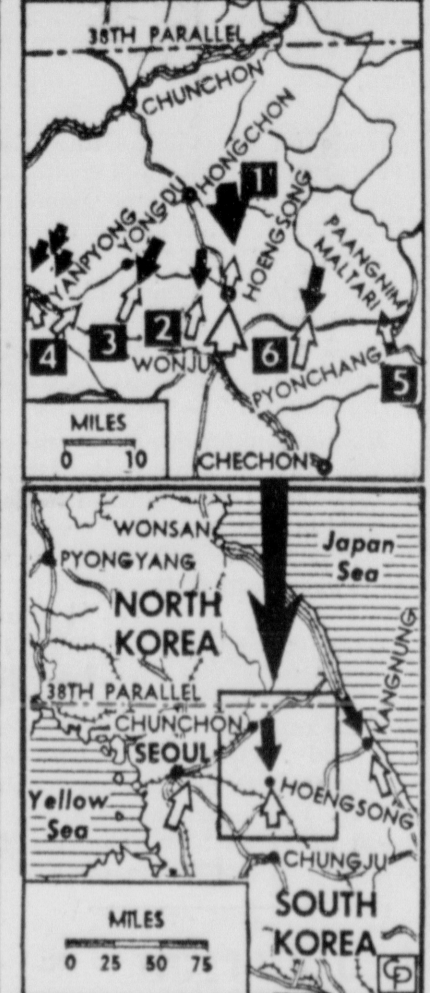

In London, authoritative British circles described the Russian note as a "short and abrupt" acceptance.

These quarters said that the Russians will be likely to inject the subject of Trieste into any discussions regarding Austria. The Western Powers favor the city's return to Italy.

RUSSIA ORIGINALLY proposed a new Big Four meeting last fall as the aftermath of a resolution adopted at a Cominform meeting in Prague.

The first Soviet note proposed that the conference be confined to German problems. The Western Powers held that all East-West issues should be discussed, with German affairs given priority.

The Western nations then suggested a meeting of Big Four deputies to draft an agenda. Gromyko's reply now paves the way for a new formal session of the Big Four if the deputies are able to agree upon a satisfactory program of discussion.

UN Inches Forward

Marine Bayonets Gain Vital Hill

TOKYO, March 2—(Friday)—The United Nations "killer offensive" rammed forward against heavy resistance at several points on the Korean front Thursday and in one bloody struggle U. S. Marines killed 88 Chinese Reds in a bayonet charge.

Enemy forces, fighting a delaying action below the 38th Parallel, battled for every inch of ground in two engagements—against the Marines on the central front near Hoengsong and against U. S. Army infantrymen near Seoul.

On the east-central front resistance also was strong as U. S. Second Division troops ground out a half mile gain.

The battle-hardened Leathernecks of the First Marine Division engaged in the most dramatic battle of the day when they stormed Cloverleaf Hill two and a half miles west of Hoengsong.

The Marines overcame buzz-saw resistance by elements of the Chinese 66th Red Army entrenched on the strategic height Thursday morning, but later the

Rail Unions OK New Pact

WASHINGTON, March 1—The nation's non-operating rail unions, representing more than a million workers, today ended their long wage dispute with the railroads by signing a contract for a 12 and one-half cent hourly pay boost.

The contract is retroactive to Feb. 1, and contains a provision for a cost-of-living adjustment on April 1 based on the Labor Department's index and a similar revision every three months thereafter.

FOULUP SAID 'NO STRIKE'

President Says Labor's Boycott Is Not Serious

WASHINGTON, March 1—President Truman said today that he does not regard Labor's boycott of the nation's mobilization effort as very serious or as an actual strike against the government.

The President told his news conference that he has full confidence in Defense Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson. He said Labor should remember that the present world crisis affects every segment of the population, including Labor.

Mr. Truman's remarks referred to the action late yesterday of the major labor organizations in ordering the withdrawal of all their representatives from participation in the mobilization program in protest over the 10 percent wage increase formula.

The President declined to disclose what steps he will take to meet the labor boycott, but he said he will act at the proper time.

Mr. Truman said this action could be expected within a couple of weeks.

THE CHIEF executive said the development is not a strike against the government. It is simply another aspect of a disagreement.

He said he is leaving for Florida tomorrow as scheduled, that the Labor move will not affect his trip, and that he will be working away at his desk in Key West just as he does at his desk in Washington.

A reporter asked: "Do you remain confident that Labor will continue, by and large, to do its share to produce the weapons and other things required for national defense?"

The President said he did. He told the reporter:

"Let me tell you something. Sometime back I declared a national emergency. That emergency affects every segment of our nation and the continent. It affects Labor, the white collar worker, industry and everyone."

Major labor organizations pulled all their representatives and advisory committees from government agencies handling different segments of the rearmament effort. Veteran officials recalled no precedent for the mass labor resignations.

Neither War Mobilization Director Wilson nor Economic Stabilizer Johnston had any immediate comment on the announcement by the United Labor Policy Committee that all labor assistants and consultants and advisory committees participating in the mobilization effort were resigning en masse.

SOME SOURCES said the President may await public reaction to Labor's move in the expectation that it may induce a more conciliatory attitude on the part of union leaders.

The labor policy committee, which represents the AFL, CIO and railway brotherhoods, did not slam the door completely shut. It left a small opening for the renewal of negotiations.

In its prepared statement announcing the resignations, it said:

"In the interests of our country and the cause of international peace and freedom to which it is committed, we stand ready to meet with responsible representatives of our government to continue to seek a remedy for the insupportable conditions facing us."

Labor's anger is directed chiefly at Wilson, and some administration officials insist that the committee action is intended to force Wilson out as mobilization chief, or at least to compel him to return control of manpower to the Labor Department.

The group, however, withdrew from government agencies handling defense programs for four labor advisory committees. In addition, George Harrison, president of the AFL Railway Clerks, withdrew as special assistant to Johnston. A. J. Hayes, president of the machinists union, resigned as special assistant to Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, assistant secretary of defense in charge of manpower.

The walkout follows the resignations of the three labor members of the Wage Stabilization Board after that agency two weeks ago adopted a 10 percent ceiling on wage increases since Jan. 15, 1950.

Johnston approved this ceiling Tuesday night, but recommended to the board that it approve major demands by Labor for making the formula more flexible. Although this was in the nature of a concession to Labor, the union leaders insisted that Johnston should have ordered the changes in the formula directly instead of asking the board to approve them.

Marshall Plugs For 18-Draft

WASHINGTON, March 1—Defense Secretary Marshall told Congress today that unless 18-year-olds are drafted the Reservists now on active duty must be retained in the armed forces indefinitely.

Marshall opposed a proposal tentatively agreed on by the House Armed Services Committee to make the minimum draft age 18 and one-half instead of 18. The present induction bracket is 19 through 25.

HOUSEWIVES' RESISTANCE to high meat prices keeps cooling rooms of supply houses across the nation filled, as this New York City scene proves. Foreman Albert Gaensslen looks over his unmoved stock, resulting from a 30 percent decrease in sales.

PRICES HIKED TOO HIGH

Government Opens Probe Of Illegal Meat Boosts

WASHINGTON, March 1—The government's first large-scale price investigation probes today into reports meat prices have illegally jumped three to five cents a pound.

Price stabilization investigators throughout the nation acted after a "substantial portion" of the industry complained of price hikes at the packer and handling level.

Meat distributors declared the price freeze prevented them from passing the price increases on to consumers and demanded protective action.

To settle the question, Office of Price Stabilization Enforcement

Director Edward P. Morgan assigned "all available" investigators to check meat firms price records and reports.

Morgan asserted:

"OPS ENFORCEMENT personnel are now directed to throw all available manpower into a concentrated effort to see to what extent packers and other handlers of meats back of the retailer are violating the freeze order."

Under the price freeze, the industry is obliged to keep meat prices at or under the highest level prevailing between Dec. 19 and Jan. 25.

OPS said that wholesalers, jobbers and non-slaughtering processors, however, are being forced to pay the higher prices.

Federal investigators will inspect the records of packers, wholesalers and jobbers to compare prices paid to them in the base period with prices paid to them on a more recent date.

In addition, they will check on live cattle prices and will determine prices charged by integrated slaughterers who have branch houses distributing the meats.

OPS said packers will also be asked to explain the methods used to arrive at their current ceilings as compared with their base period experience.

Charles Taft May Toss Hat

CINCINNATI, March 1—The political world of Ohio was stirred today by the announcement by Charles P. Taft, leading churchman and civic figure, that he might be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor next year.

Taft is a brother of Ohio's senior senator, Robert A. Taft. The simple announcement that the younger Taft might toss his hat in the state ring caused discomfort among Democrats and Republicans alike.

Some GOP members thought "Charey's" more liberal views might not go too well. Democrats felt a certain amount of dismay because of the popularity of young Taft.

3 MIG-15 Jets Said Damaged

IN KOREA, March 1—The Fifth Airforce today claimed damage on three out of four MIG-15 jets that attacked a flight of 12 American F-80 Shooting Stars over North Korea.

The Airforce said that the battle took place over Sinuiju in the extreme northwest corner of North Korea. The spectacular aerial dogfight lasted 10 minutes. There was no report of damage to American planes.

Pay-As-Go Total Is Up $80 Million

10 Major Increases Noted In Message

COLUMBUS, March 1—Governor Lausche presented an all-time record high budget totaling $729 million to a joint session of the Ohio Legislature today.

The measure, which contemplated no new taxes and which was described by the governor as a "pay-as-you-go budget which reflects rock-bottom need," was approximately $80 million more than the $649 million budget of two years ago.

The measure included general fund expenditures of $586,432,000, highway expenditures of $123,700,000, liquor department expenditures of $14,491,000, and conservation funds totaling $4,452,000.

By contrast the figures in the budget two years ago were:

General fund, $522,245,000; highway, $110,005,000; liquor, $13,129,000 and conservation $4,072,000.

THE BUDGET DID not include $5 million which Lausche proposes to be set aside as an emergency Civil Defense fund, disposition of the $18 million surplus, $24 million for local governments taken from sales tax revenues, nor $32 million of intangible taxes collected by the state but returned to the site of collection.

The governor's 13-page message was concerned solely with the general revenue factors of the budget, since the other funds operate at a loss. The general fund figures show an increase of $64 million over two years ago.

The governor listed the principal increases as follows:

- 1—$5.5 million for minimum $2,400-a-year teacher salaries.
- 2—$8 million for a $5-a-month increase in old age pensions.
- 3—$4 million for the operation of the new Ohio State university medical center.
- 4—$2.2 million for the operation of the new tuberculosis hospital.
- 5—$1.5 million for new operations of the natural resources department.
- 6—$6 million to operate new receiving hospitals.
- 7—$250,000 for Civil Defense administration.
- 8—$9.5 million increase maintenance costs.
- 9—$3.5 million for school buses.
- 10—$4.5 million for school rehabilitation.

THE LAST TWO items are the same as appropriated two years ago, but at that time they were appropriated from surplus. This year they must be appropriated from incoming revenues.

The remaining $21 million of the increase is taken generally with minor, but necessary, department expansions and for the most part, by mandatory salary increases for state workers in all departments voted by the last legislature.

At present, state salaries paid from the general fund total approximately $54 million a year.

The only tax change contemplated by the new budget was an increase in the state's take of parimutuel betting at horse race tracks.

It was estimated that this tax increase would produce an additional $800,000 a year to bring the state's total parimutuel tax to about $1.5 million annually.

The budget estimated sales tax collections at their current high rate of $145.2 million a year. The governor warned that "during the second world war there was a conspicuous leveling and diminution of revenues after rationing laws went into effect and prices were controlled."

HE EXPRESSED fear that a limitation on the supply of automobiles might again have a drastic effect on sales tax collections, but the budget was based on the assumption that any curtailment of revenues under the present system should be offset by any one of several proposals.

Shucks, That Was No Planet; It Was Thalia!

CINCINNATI, March 1—Forget about it—there has been no new planet discovered as reported by the U. S. Naval Observatory in Washington last weekend.

Dr. Paul Herget, director of the Cincinnati Observatory at the University of Cincinnati, said so.

Dr. Herget, who is chief of the minor planet center of the International Astronomical Union was asked to check the findings of the Naval Observatory's Dr. William Markowitz.

Dr. Markowitz spotted an unexplained body in the naval observatory's big 26-inch refracting telescope last Saturday and Sunday nights and thought he had something completely new.

Furthermore, his calculations showed this brash, intruding planet might come zooming close to Earth—closer than the moon even, which is a mere 225,000 miles away.

But Dr. Herget found last night that Dr. Markowitz's hair-raiser is only good old Thalia, Minor Planet Number 23, discovered away back in 1855.

And the Cincinnati said Thalia, is right in the regular orbit it has maintained since its discovery and will not come near Earth at all.

Dr. Herget said he might have gone along with Dr. Markowitz had it not been for a tip received by telegram last night from Dr. L. E. Cunningham of the University of California.

Dr. Herget said he was "foolish" temporarily by the planet's behavior, but Dr. Cunningham thought all along Thalia might be the fly in the astronomical ointment.

So Dr. Herget rechecked his complex mathematical computations and started running through the list of known planets eliminating one by one those which did not tally with his figures—until he got to the 23rd minor planet discovered. And what do you know—there it was—Thalia.

posed changes tightening the sales tax law.

The governor proposed that the local government allocation be cut from $18 million to $12 million a year. To offset this he pointed out that they could collect more than the $6 million difference through an enactment of a proposal permitting them to levy local liquor license levies.

In addition, they will get their 30 percent of the last biennium's $18 million surplus, or $4.5 million. Thus, the governor stated, they would actually have more revenues.

He also cited the fact that real estate has been re-valued for taxation purposes in the last biennium which would make more funds available locally.

The school aid budget was fixed at $199,400,000 — $13,825,000 more than it was two years ago. This included the $5,600,000 for minimum salaries, $2,925,000 to take care of increased enrollments, and the schools' 30 percent share of the surplus, or $5.4 million. The formula for state aid per pupil was not changed.

WELFARE institutions were allocated $7.5 million for expansion of their mental, penal and correctional operations.

In drafting the budget, the governor said he had to pare the department requests and other demands a total of $117,294,000. Demands the budget ignores are those of teachers for an additional $31.5 million new school construction an additional $12 million; school rehabilitation an additional $1 million; local governments an additional $24 million; aid to the aged an additional $15 million, and increases for public employees and teachers pensions an additional $9 million.

The governor estimated revenues for the coming biennium at $586,777,493, or a scant $345,000 over budget recommendations.

He said, however, that "in view of international conditions" all revenues in excess of estimates should be placed in an emergency reserve fund to meet any contingencies.

Lausche said he would submit a separate bill later to set up a $5 million Civil Defense emergency fund. This could come out of the state's share of the last biennium's $18 million surplus which would amount to $7.2 million.

The governor disclosed that approximately $25 million appropriated by the last legislature for capital improvements was still unencumbered at the beginning of this year.

He suggested that any residue of this fund still unencumbered at the end of the fiscal year June 30 be re-appropriated for its original purposes.

Sherman Plans Trip Abroad

WASHINGTON, March 1 — Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, is to leave today for Paris to confer with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

After seeing the European commander-in-chief, Sherman will go to London to confer with Adm. Robert B. Carney, commander of U.S. naval forces in the Eastern Atlantic and the Mediterranean.

Sherman said he will then fly to the Mediterranean to confer with Vice Adm. John J. Ballentine of Hillsboro, Ohio, commander of the U.S. Mediterranean Fleet, on board Ballentine's flagship.

Trio Arrested For Theft Series

TROY, March 1—James Follett, 19, of Dayton, and John Syx, 18, of Vandalia, were held today to the Miami County grand jury under $1,000 bonds and a 15-year-old boy is held for complicity in the robbery of a Troy filling station.

The trio was arrested at Vandalia in connection with a complaint of their ransacking several farm houses. Loot and guns were found in their car.

Sheriff Richard Seifried said the trio told him they went from farm to farm asking for a fictitious person and if no one answered the door they broke into the house.

million in loans from RFC but went bankrupt.

IN HIS TESTIMONY, Strandlund said that the company was on its way to being a "tremendous success" and had 8,000 orders for houses on hand when the drive to capture it got underway.

He said that if "certain financial wolves be prohibited from utilizing further their blackjack methods" the plan can be put into 100-houses-a-day production in 30 days.

Strandlund said that part of the pressure put on him was a demand that he give up 60,000 of his 86,000 shares in Lustron to be turned over to new directors which he said were to be named by Dunham.

He said that while these negotiations were going on, Young "strongly urged" him to accept Dunham's terms.

Strandlund testified that Young was hired by Lustron at $12,000 a year at the request of RFC Director Harvey Gundersen and raised to $3,000 at the request of then RFC Chairman Harley Hise.

Youth Asking For Divorce, Child's Custody

A petition for divorce has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Frank Schooley through his father, Earl Schooley, against Barbara Schooley.

The petition states the couple was married Aug. 20, 1949, in Greenup, Ky. They have one child. Grounds for seeking the divorce are listed as gross neglect and extreme cruelty.

The husband claims he owns four rooms furniture in a rented house and a purebred Berkshire pig. In addition to the divorce the plaintiff asks that the wife be barred from any interest in the property and that a restraining order be issued to keep her from disposing of the property. He also asks for custody of the child.

The restraining order was granted by Judge William D. Radcliff.

Probate Court Problems Aired

Members of Pickaway County Bar Association Wednesday heard a discussion of probate court problems by Franklin County Probate Judge Cloy P. McClelland and Chief Deputy Clerk Francis J. Byerly.

The meeting was held in Pickaway County Club. Also discussed by the speakers were bills relating to probate courts now pending in the Ohio legislature.

Les Sanders Wins Trophy

In cooperation on the field as well as in class and with his friends.

And that, too, is Lester Sanders. Sanders measures about 6'1" and weighs about 160 pounds—and every bit of him is outwardly calm through even severe athletic tests.

Loren Straight, superintendent of the Monroe school, pointed out the lad is an above average student in his classes, "tops" in likeability with his teachers, classmates and teammates and: "I just can't say too much in his credit."

Sanders began playing basketball six years ago when Straight was beginning as coach in the school.

The Bob Bowsher award winner played basketball in the seventh and eighth grades, making thearsity team in his freshman year.

"He has never been angry in the six years he has played," Straight said. "He's not very talkative, but he is by no means backward."

Coach Plant, working for the second season this year with Sanders, put it this way:

"He is about the finest all-around athlete I've ever seen. He is a good trainer, 100 percent cooperative and played the major part in holding the team together."

PLANT ADDED that Sanders' easy-going attitude does not speak of a lack of fire or determination on the floor.

"During a game he gives it his all," Plant said. "Win or lose that game, he is calm, always looking ahead to the next game."

Instrumental in bringing the first tournament championship to his school in its 25-year history, Sanders is as good loser as most players are at winning.

In Wednesday's heart-breaker loss to Bremen in the district tournament (see sports page) Sanders played all out to aid his team, although Monroe was bested in the final few seconds of play.

"HE TOLD ME later," Plant disclosed, "that he received his biggest thrill in basketball during that game."

"Sanders told me he had been practicing a hook shot since he has been playing ball, but just wasn't able to get it working. His thrill Wednesday was that he connected for one of the hook shots just when we needed it most."

Sanders, the first Negro lad to receive the Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy, is co-captain of this year's Monroe Indian basketball squad, helping to pilot the team into its first tournament championship and coping co-championship honors in league play this season.

He is the son of Arthur Sanders of near Five Points and does farm work to aid his father. His mother died several years ago.

Sanders, unlike many top athletes, has a good attendance mark in the Monroe school, scarcely ever absent from class-work.

Summing up the lad's abilities, Superintendent Straight put it this way:

"I'd just like to have a whole lot of boys like him," he said. Formal presentation of the trophy to Sanders will be made later.

Catsup Wounds Lead To Divorce

CHICAGO, March 1 — Mrs. Barbara J. Wahlberg, 22, of Chicago is seeking a divorce today from her husband who she says was only playing an April fool's joke when he displayed slashed, bloody wrists in an apparent suicide attempt.

Mrs. Wahlberg's superior court suit relates how she began packing last April 1 when her spouse, Harvey, 23, threatened her with a razor and a gun.

But when he appeared a few minutes later with his wrists covered with gore she forgave him.

It wasn't until later, says Mrs. Wahlberg, that she learned he had splashed himself with catsup.

Communists regrouped and counter-attacked strongly.

A FRONT DISPATCH reported the Marines were still "heavily engaged" Thursday evening. A Tenth Corps spokesman said: "The Communists are showing greater determination to remain in areas where they are in contact with Allied forces. They are fighting stronger delaying actions."

Increased enemy resistance also cropped up on the western front near Seoul.

A reinforced American Third Division reconnaissance patrol landed from assault boats on an island in the Han river four miles east of Seoul and after a five-hour fight withdrew to the south bank of the stream.

The American infantrymen ran into fierce opposition in the village of Chimsil at the southern tip of the island and also in Sinchon on the northern end. Enemy mortar and artillery on the north bank of the river also opened up on the Americans.

The original plan of Allied officers was to take the island and set it up as a bridgehead from which tanks could attack enemy troops in the Red-held national capital.

Failure to hold the island, however, was not considered of major importance since the avowed aim of the "killer offensive" is to destroy as many enemy troops as possible rather than to gain ground.

An inspection of production facilities of producers supplying milk to Circleville distributors has been scheduled for next week by Circleville Health Commissioner C. O. Leist.

The inspections will be made under a milk code legislated into being last year by Circleville city council.

Wallace Shows Cline How State Assembly Works

Pickaway County Prosecutor Guy Cline got a glimpse of the workings of the Ohio Legislature Wednesday.

He was the guest of Ed Wallace, the county's representative.

While on the visit, Cline met several members of the house and discussed various pending bills with them. Wallace reported:

"We enjoyed having him with us and hope he pays us another visit. I would appreciate visits from all of the folks from Pickaway County."

Wallace, a freshman member of the lower chamber, is assigned to three house committees—agriculture, commerce and transportation and insurance. He is secretary of the latter panel.

Wallace also said that the General Assembly's official roster lists three Pickaway Countyans as employees of the legislative body. They are: Charles Carter, senate doorkeeper; Robert W. Palm, house committee room attendant; and Charles F. White, parttime house page.

Leo Morgan of 407 East Franklin street outwitted a line of 1951 auto tag purchasers in Pickaway County court house early Thursday to receive the first plate issued here this year.

In fact, this was Morgan's second year at being the first to receive the first license tag here, having earned the distinction last year.

In both instances, Morgan made off with license Y-851, put on sale here by Registrar Joe Brink at about 9 a. m. Thursday.

By 10:30 a. m. Thursday a long line of customers had formed at the booth where tags are issued, and a total of 156 of the blue and white tags had been

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Director

A broad hint that definite progress is being made in lining up the Mediterranean nations for a definite place in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has been given by British Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell.

And there is a definite possibility that before a workable plan is obtained, the planners of Western defense policies may have to clear some sizable hurdles and come to grips with an explosive new situation.

Shinwell told a luncheon meeting of the Foreign Press Association in London that the question of bringing Greece, Turkey and other Mediterranean nations into the "spirit and outlook" of the Atlantic Pact is under active consideration.

What he did not say is that Soviet Russia can be expected to react with real vigor.

The Russians have not taken kindly to the dispatch of United States military and economic aid, particularly to Turkey.

FOR THE PRESENT, this assistance as well as other American moves in Iran, have checked Soviet plans for expansion in the Middle East.

A measure of Soviet annoyance could be seen in a blast a little more than a week ago appearing in the newspaper Red Fleet, official organ of the Russian navy. It said that the United States, Great Britain and France, with the cooperation of Italy, were planning a seaborne attack against Soviet industrial centers on the Black Sea.

The charge served to recall Russia's frequent demands for a fortress on the Dardanelles and an end to Turkish control over the vital straits linking the Black Sea with the Mediterranean.

Observers also remembered Soviet designs on the Eastern Turkish provinces of Kars and Ardahan, plus Moscow's frequent criticism of Great Britain and the United States for maintaining air bases in North Africa.

Generally speaking, the plans for inclusion of the Mediterranean in the Atlantic defense system pose the following problems:

1—As outlined, a conflict with Soviet interests and ambitions in the Middle East as a result of Turkish participation.

2—That of maintaining stability in Greece and giving the Russians no opportunity to make a case against alleged Western interference in the Balkans.

3—A revision of the Italian peace treaty in exchange for vital Italian naval and military contributions to defense.

4—The status of Generalissimo Francisco Franco and his Falangist rule in Spain.

Obviously, full utilization of anti-Communist forces in the Mediterranean cannot exclude Italy and Spain.

Like any other program of grand military strategy, the present one contains many thorny and obvious difficulties. If they are satisfactorily overcome, Western Democracy may be well on the road to military self-sufficiency against aggression.

Cattle Hides Being Allocated

WASHINGTON, March 1—The government today clamped complete allocation controls on cattle hides, the main leather used in shoemaking, but said the ac-

The leather order provides for the allocation of February's entire production of cattle hides, calf skins and kips, which are used to make shoes, gloves, belts and other items.

PSYCHIATRIST CITES FINDING

Aid Given Mentally Ill By Rigidly-Controlled Diet

CHICAGO, March 1—A psychiatrist has reported he has been able to achieve dramatic improvement in at least two cases of mental illness through a rigidly controlled diet.

Dr. Julius I. Steinfeld of Des Plaines, Ill., claims that his research "though only a beginning... opens new avenues of thinking" in the whole field of mental hygiene.

Diet used by Dr. Steinfeld was top heavy with proteins and fats and included large amounts of meat, eggs, butter and other fatty foods.

Excluded entirely were sugar, potatoes and other carbohydrates and starches.

What Dr. Steinfeld was searching for, he explained, was a diet which would form through natural chemical action in the body—a high percentage of acid in the blood and spinal fluid.

Acid is found in mental patients who have been given shock treatment.

SHOCK TREATMENTS, such as electric shock of insulin coma are widely used in the treatment of mental disorders literally to "shock" the individual out of his delusions.

The beneficial effects of shock therapy, Dr. Steinfeld reasoned, might be due to the acid in the blood and spinal fluid.

Drugs, he added, failed to produce the proper acid condition, diet did.

Four patients—all of whom had failed to respond to conventional shock therapy—were selected by Dr. Steinfeld for testing.

All had been schizophrenic—often called split personality—three for from four to six years and one for two years.

All were placed on the high-acid diet for from 12 to 14 days and clinical improvement was noted in all four toward the end of the diet period.

In one case, Dr. Steinfeld combined the diet with shock treatment to get this dramatic result:

"A schizophrenic man, 44, who had bizarre persecution ideas two to three years... showed no response to electric shock treatments... he therefore was subjected to a two-week diet combined with shock treatments of the same type as before.

"After termination of the combined treatment he showed insight into the delusional character of his ideas, returned to work and has been doing well since. He has now been observed for four months."

Dr. Steinfeld added:

"Though this is only a beginning and many more data will have to be obtained, these results do suggest an additional method in the therapy of the treatment resisting patients and

Being Farmer Is Proved To Be Expensive

WASHINGTON, March 1—The Agriculture Department says that being a farmer has become a very expensive proposition.

Farmers' production and living expenses have inched up to new high records each of the last three months.

In mid-February the inflationary spiral took farm costs about two percent higher than mid-January. And officials say there does not seem to be much slackening in the upward movement.

The blame for the continuing upward pressure on farm costs is put squarely on higher prices for feeder livestock, food, feed, and building materials.

Retail prices paid by farmers for other groups of items were steady or slightly higher in mid-February than a month earlier.

The only consolation farmers might have in this day of jet propelled prices is that city folks are having the same trouble—they are paying record prices for farm products in addition to everything else.

WASHINGTON, March 1—The House committee on Agriculture urges that mobilization czars recognize that agriculture is an essential defense industry.

The congressmen say that if mobilizers do not consider agriculture an essential defense industry, farmers will not get the materials they need to produce enough crops to meet mobilization requirements.

The committee felt called upon to make the statement after accepting the recommendations of a special subcommittee report which says farmers will need more than 500,000 tons more sulfur this year than last.

A-Attack Would Panic U.S., CD Expert Believes

LONDON, March 1—Britain's top Civil Defense training man says he is "awfully afraid there would be panic" in America—particularly in New York—in the event of an atomic attack.

Sir John Hodson, who has visited the United States twice in recent months, warned at the same time that the U. S. has "much more difficult" problems in Civil Defense than Britain had to overcome in World War II.

Hodson, director - general of civil defense training, emphasized also that a "sense of urgency" is necessary for the speedy preparation of an effective CD program.

Hodson, a retired Royal Air Force wing commander, has devoted himself to Civil Defense for more than 15 years.

HE DIRECTED AIR RAID precautions in Britain from 1938 to 1948, when he assumed his present position.

Pope Cites Basic Laws Of Religion

VATICAN CITY, March 1—Pope Pius lamented today what he termed the "forgotten or deliberately buried" basic principles of religion.

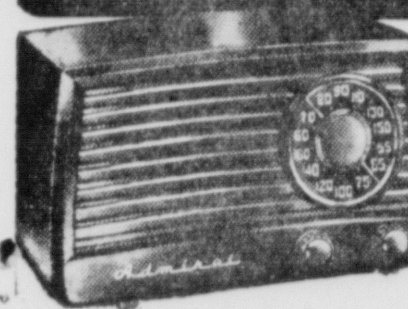

The pontiff, accepting credentials from the new Liberian minister to the Vatican, said that in the present day the borderlines of dividing truth from error "are dimmed and confused with ensuing harm to the community and to individuals." He appealed for understanding between religion and "humaneness," adding:

"They are not rivals, but sisters. They have nothing to fear from one another, but everything to gain."

SOON TO THE MOON?

THE SPACE ship is the backbone of science fiction. On those magic pages, earthlings travel through the celestial galaxies faster than the speed of light and as nonchalantly as men now fly from New York to Paris.

The "space men" of these romances use craft of unbelievable complexity, powered by fuels which will be available, if ever, only to generations of the remote future. But serious-minded scientists and engineers, applying "techniques already at our disposal," are calmly planning rockets capable of interstellar travel. They are not under construction, but their construction, it is claimed, is possible.

Authority for this intelligence is Arthur V. St. Germain, of whose practical knowledge there can be no doubt, since he is senior test engineer for the Fairfield guided missiles division at the Navy's highly secret Point Mugu (Cal.) test center. He says designers already know enough to permit them to build a rocket which could land two men on the moon and bring them back.

This ship would tower 325 feet into the air above the launching site, weigh 360,000 pounds and attain a speed of 25,000 miles an hour, which would get its passengers to the moon in approximately 10 hours.

Only the unromantic will ask what's the use of being able to fly to the moon. It's only the first goal. After the moon there would be millions of worlds to conquer, some of them maybe as green and lovely and much more peaceful than our own.

NEED FOR SCIENTISTS

MANPOWER in scientific defense research is undergoing heavy strain for lack of numbers. The reason for this, as explained by William Webster, chairman of the Research and Development Board, an agency of the Department of Defense that is shrouded in utmost secrecy, is the speed with which progress is being sought. Scientific specialists and skilled technicians are today so greatly in demand by industry that it is difficult for Mr. Webster's board to add to its own supply.

The men Mr. Webster is looking for are not men who have to be trained, but those who are already proficient. That he will get some of them before long he not unreasonably expects when the national economy is tightened, presumably by the restriction of materials for civilian output.

What Mr. Webster's board is doing is to concentrate on weapons that were "just around the corner" when trouble in Korea started. One of these, about which there has been a great deal of speculation, will be the atomic shell.

These Days

The really big problem that this country faces today is inflation, which means that money is constantly being cheapened, so that prices go up because it costs more money to buy a given item. Sound money is usually based on gold; inflated money gives the possessor the "feeling" of having plenty while actually he has less because he has less purchasing power.

"Political Action of the Week"—organ of the CIO-PAC—does not fear inflation. In fact, in its Feb. 5 issue, it points out that the "freeze" orders are a fake and does so very clearly:

"Watch for a series of revisions setting the 10 percent-above-last June standard for wages. The first of these cleared the way for the raises. Another set of orders is due to open the way for cost-of-living raises and there are good prospects for the same sort of action on pension payments and other items. At present these are frozen, the same as bonuses, vacation and holiday pay, and higher rates for night shifts. The difference is that the cost of living raises lag several months behind higher prices and thus do not cause them. Pension and similar payments are actually money taken out of the buyers market. But higher pay for vacations and other benefits goes right into people's pockets ready to be spent."

While none of this has yet happened quite as indicated here, the fact is that such an arrangement would have pleased the CIO, and when it does happen, they will be temporarily contented, even though every increase in prices, wages, rents, profits is not an increase in value but a boost to the inflation. The old adage "whatever goes up, must come down" could hit this country with such a bang that it might be more disastrous than war.

The real trouble is that we all want more money and we are accustomed to think in terms of currency rather than in terms of purchasing power. The housewife tells you that a $10 bill flies over the butcher's counter as though it had wings, and then she wants her husband to ask for more wages. That is human nature without the restraints of disciplined thinking.

More money can be less money, if the purchasing power of the dollar goes down. The statement: "The difference is that the cost of living raises lag several months behind higher prices and thus do not cause them," is just careless thinking.

Prices rise on trends in the marketplace, because the merchant or manufacturer must calculate replacement costs as well as future buying and therefore tries to set his price so that he does not get stuck when he has to pay more for what he needs to sell. Of course, sometimes a trend is misunderstood, and also buyers' resistance can set in and the merchant is caught with goods on his hands which he cannot sell. That could, over a period, break him.

It is true that "higher pay for vacations and other benefits goes right into people's pockets ready to be spent," but this precisely is the inflationary process. The volume of money increases; the value of money increases; the value of money decreases. That is inflation.

It would seem to me that the labor leaders would devote themselves to a deflationary program at this time. Their members cannot benefit from faked increases during an inflationary period, even if increases give the impression of wonderful successes for the labor leaders.

Symptoms of a Disorder That May Affect the Kneecap

By HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE kneecap or patella serves a useful purpose both in protecting the ends of the leg bones and in improving the efficiency of leg movement, but like all other parts of the body it is subject to certain disorders which may make its removal necessary.

The changes which time brings to all of the body's structures seem to start earlier in the kneecap than elsewhere, and to continue at a gradual pace throughout life. They are chiefly centered around its thick layer of cartilage or gristle which may soften little by little until parts of it break off. Such changes may be hastened by recurrent strain on the kneecap or by direct pressure.

Attacks of Pain

Symptoms consist of attacks of pain, at intervals, over the front part of the knee, with an occasional sensation of "catching" of the joint. This is followed by slight stiffness and moderate swelling of the knee joint. There may be some wasting of the thigh muscles and tenderness along the inner border of the kneecap. However, X-ray examination does not reveal anything abnormal about the patella.

In treating the condition, if the symptoms and disability are not great, the patient is given exercise to help maintain the strength of the thigh muscles, and is cautioned to avoid any knee injury.

If the joint locks or catches frequently, swells, and becomes stiff, an operation is usually necessary.

In the operation, the cartilage layer is cut down and a search made for any loose bits of cartilage which, of course, are removed. Now and then, it may be necessary to remove the patella.

Bony Tissue

In elderly persons, there may be a condition of the patella due to overgrowth of bony tissue. In this disorder, also, the patient has pain and swelling that are made worse by accidental injury or unusual exercise. The lining membrane, as well as the bone itself, are thickened, and these changes can be seen in the X-ray plate. There is usually some limitation of the movement of the knee.

In this disorder, conservative treatment, such as supporting the knee joint with a bandage, the application of heat, and muscle exercise, will often bring about improvement. In other cases, operative treatment is required.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. A. P.: What would cause tiny, pin-point blood spots to rise just under the surface of the skin?
Answer: These spots are known as petechiae. They are due to a variety of causes, among which are meningitis, leukemia, or purpura. Frequently they are due to less serious causes, among them being sensitivity to drugs such as aspirin.

It is important that you have a thorough examination made by your doctor to determine the exact cause; then proper treatment can be carried out.

SYNOPSIS
Just prior to the War of 1812, pioneer Quint Darby and his wife, Rhoda, settle on the Niagara river across from Canada. Here they prosper and make friends, but socially ambitious Rhoda is unhappy. Her nagging tyranny kills what love there was between them and Quint turns to the hope of building merchant ships. He is kept informed as to the Mohawk tribe's activities across the river, by a handsome young half-breed brave, Peter Brant.

CHAPTER THREE

THE DOOR opened, and Becky put her head through. Her face, so recently full of terror, was pink now with excitement. "Mr. Darby! It's great folks come!"

Great folks did not often come to the Ferry Tavern; usually they stopped at Hodge's. Quint followed Becky to the door.

"See?" Becky whispered. Over the shoulders of the men in the doorway, Quint saw a galley-shaped wagon, its white hempen cover stretched tight over arching hoops, the body of it a bright blue as well as the wheels, where they were not coated with mud. The harnesses of its four horses gleamed with silver and on the lead horse sat a driver in buff livery. A young man on a fifth horse was engaged in quieting his mount. An older man, elegantly attired, was approaching the tavern. Near the door he lifted his head and sent a cold glance over to a group standing in open-mouthed curiosity at this splendor before them.

"I am told by Mr. Hodge that I will find Quint Darby here. Which of you is he?"

Quint knew the voice. But utter surprise held him still for a moment, then he pushed a way through the men in front of him. "Alec! I didn't know you at once!"

"It's been a considerable time." The newcomer shook the hand Quint had offered him. "You have altered, too. I doubt I would have known you." His eyes went to the empty sleeve of Quint's coat. "Lost it fighting Little Turtle at Fallen Timbers," said Quint, a deliberate note of pride in his voice. "But let us go in where we can talk. The young man yonder?" The young man had ridden down to the water's edge.

"My son, Richard." "Of course—he would be grown, now. A good mount he's on. Toby, inform the young gentleman where we are. Men, this is my brother, Alec Darby from Connecticut State."

Alec Darby inclined his head a very little as he passed into the tavern. "This way, Alec. We've our own living quarters in back."

Quint always had taken pride in the room to which he now led his brother. He considered it most pleasant, even luxurious, as luxury was known on the frontier. Muslin curtains hung at the windows, bright woven rugs covered the floor, the oak of chairs and tables was polished to a mellow glow. In one corner stood a piano. Quint had bought for Rhoda from a family going through to the west and needing money. Rhoda did not know how to play it but she was proud to have it.

But now Alec's slow glance over the room made everything in it, even the piano, seem crude. And Quint saw it all in sorry contrast to the fine furnishings of the drawing-room in the Connecticut house in which he and Alec had grown up.

Quint studied his brother. He had aged, beyond his years—seemed grown in on himself. But he had lost nothing of the arrogant bearing Quint remembered.

"You've come from Greenlands?" Alec turned, sat down in a chair. "Greenlands is sold."

Quint was startled, aware, too, of a deep pang of sadness. He cherished memories of the great white house, of the lands deeded to their father's father by the Crown.

"I cannot imagine..." he had begun when Alec continued. "You would find the environs of Greenlands very different now. Too settled for my liking. The estate was left to me by my father's will and when a purchaser came, a new-rich Yankee from Boston, I sold it."

A bitterness in his voice suggested more of the truth than his words, that Alec had hung onto his Tory loyalties and the community had frozen him out.

"Your plans now are to travel some, then live in New York?" There was the banking house which their father had founded before the War of Independence, in which Alec had been well established at the time Quint broke with the family. His father had had a place for him, too, in it, but he would have none of it. It and to do mostly with brokering the rich carriages brought into the New York port from the Orient, and without doubt the troubles on the high seas these last many months had disrupted it considerably, but even so Quint could not think of Alec's parting with it.

Alec said, "I have sold the business. It was no longer a gentleman's business." He brushed his hands, palm against palm, as if to rid himself of the unpleasant dust of that former occupation. "I wish to live the rest of my years in peace with my traditions. I am on my way to Newark in Canada. I have had letters from Jonathan Storer, a good friend, formerly of Philadelphia, and now living in Newark, urging me to settle there, painting it as a most pleasant community. You may not know—Annette died, five years ago. Janet, my daughter, has finished her schooling, Richard his study of law. It seemed the logical time to make the change. I was advised

GIs Prove They Are Able To Fight a Primitive War

Korean Conflict Paradox Of New-and-Old Weapons

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Things are more cheerful these days at the Pentagon, the nation's military nerve center, and curiously it is not only because of the anticipation of effective new atomic weapons, but also because Uncle Sam's warriors are demonstrating that they can fight a primitive war right here in the Twentieth Century if they have to.

Strategists here conjecture that never in the history of military science has there been such a set of opposites as exists between what is taking place in Korea and at the atomic proving grounds in Nevada, the two places where American ingenuity at fighting are on trial.

GI Joe is learning how to handle atomic weapons and to defend against the possibility of such lethal weapons-of-tomorrow in enemy hands, at the same time that he turns the calendar backward to meet the Chinese Reds on their own terms.

Jet pilots are being rotated to assignments in Korea so that valuable battle experience with ultra-modern aircraft may be shared, while some of the military planners wonder if the horse cavalry was put out to pasture too quickly because of the big help they might have been on Korean terrain.

Such extremes may be farther apart today than ever before, but clashes between the present and the past are not unusual in military history. During the centuries that the British were defending a global empire, they often were fooled by foes who capitalized temporarily on outmoded methods.

● NOW THAT the United States has to meet opponents all over the world regardless of the stage of their civilization, its strategists figure that they may have to take a leaf out of John Bull's book. The English looked pretty stupid at times, but usually managed to adjust in time to win that crucial last battle.

Some of the outcomes were not so fortunate for the British, like the time when in 1814 they sent a fine army fresh from the conquest of Napoleon to conquer the Mississippi valley, and Andrew Jackson's rude frontiersmen put it to complete rout.

Even the United States has had similar experiences, the Custer Massacre in 1876 by Indians led by Chief Sitting Bull at the battle of the Little Big Horn. Civil war tactics, which involved some of the highest strategy up to that time, had to be unlearned before the Sioux were subdued.

In Korea, the Chinese have used to great advantage their hordes of foot soldiers, pack animals including even camels, and horse cavalry. Jet plans found it hard to spot the earth-colored enemy personnel which "froze" into immobility at their approach.

However, American officers now are proud of the way their men have learned to meet these tactics.

● SOME STRATEGISTS here are recommending a rebirth of the cavalry if many fights with Asiatic forces are in prospect. Most armies in the East, including the Russians with their Cossacks, keep alive the traditions of the Golden Horde of 700,000 mounted warriors. However, there is a limit to the value of looking backward for successful tactics, most Pentagon strategists agree, and there are no present plans for reactivation of horse cavalry.

Instead, the aim is to use mechanized units with the dash and imagination of Generals "Jeb" Stuart, "Light Horse Harry" Lee and Francis Marion, "the Swamp Fox." The late Gen. George Patton, a converted horse cavalryman who became a master of the tanks, is increasingly an idol of the United States Army.

One great blessing in disguise of the Korean situation which is cited here is the great opportunity it provides for unparalleled training of American military men under combat conditions that cannot be duplicated in the most rigorous peacetime training.

Much of the fighting in Korea has constituted "learning the hard way" for American officers and their troops, but the lessons are viewed around the Pentagon as indications that Uncle Sam in the role of John Bull's successor as a world policeman also can figure on winning the last and most important battles.

Challenge On 4-H Club Work Is Given Advisers At Special School Here

Extension Aides Lead Program

A challenge to the Pickaway County 4-H Clubs was offered by Larry Best in a talk Wednesday before the second annual advisers school.

Thirty-three club advisers met in Circleville First Methodist church for an all-day session sponsored by the county extension office to review the work of last year and to lay plans for the coming season.

In his address, County Agent Best said, "Probably the greatest challenge to 4-H advisers and extension workers in 1951 will be to prove to parents and older members that 4-H Club work is an important part of a defense effort."

Best also said that "one of the greatest threats in this country today is the discouragement of free enterprise. We are drifting away from individual initiative. 4-H Club work knows no bounds in this respect."

The county agent detailed a 12-point program of suggestions for planning and conducting club work in 1951.

He said in conclusion: "We need not be so concerned at what level a boy or girl starts—it's the progress he makes that counts. We have a greater challenge in 1951 than we had last year. We must meet that challenge as our share in building a better tomorrow."

Miss Genevieve Alley, county home demonstration agent, presented a review of 4-H Club activities in 1950 which was highlighted by the announcement that Pickaway 4-H Clubs had met their share—$2200—of the state 4-H foundation fund.

Merle Thomas, associate county agent, conducted a general group discussion of various phases of the 4-H program for the coming year.

Included in this discussion were such topics as the new adviser's score sheet, county fair activities, junior leadership program, use of demonstration, use of visual aids and program planning.

Women of the church served a noon lunch to the group.

The afternoon session was devoted to special subject matter training.

Home economics advisers received clothing and home furnishing project training while the agriculture advisers were instructed in special training for swine projects.

A panel discussion entitled, "What Made Our 4-H Clubs Successful" closed the program.

Members of the panel were advisers: Mrs. Leslie Dearth, Salt Creek Township; Mrs. Berman Wertman of Circleville who reported on the 4-H congress held in Ohio State university; and Ray Carpenter of Muhlenberg Township.

FLIGHT PATTERNS STUDIED

Homing Pigeons, Just Like Sunday Drivers, Confused

CLEVELAND, March 1—Vermont biologist has reported that homing pigeons, which sometimes become as confused as Sunday drivers, fly higher when in doubt than when they know where they are going.

Harold B. Hitchcock, associate professor at Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., described his efforts to learn what peculiar mechanism in pigeons enables them to find their way home—even over unfamiliar territory.

In order to follow most closely the flight of pigeons heading for home, the scientist followed them in a small plane in experiments at Middlebury and in and around Fort Monmouth, N. J.

And he found that pigeons, like everyone else, have their troubles. Sometimes they have a very rugged time getting home.

He related the experience of one group of GI pigeons from Fort Monmouth which probably will strike a familiar note with some non-pigeon GIs and former GIs.

IT SEEMS THAT in one of his experiments, Hitchcock used a flock of Army birds which have been trained to return to Fort Monmouth from the west. He released them over Wurtsboro, N. Y., 90 miles to the north.

When about 20 miles from home, they apparently were frightened by lights from arc welding on a tank farm. That snafued the situation.

The flock split with one batch joining a passing convoy out of Flushing and coming home with them.

Of the second covey of birds, Hitchcock commented sadly: "When last seen they were flying aimlessly about Brooklyn."

The biologist outlined his most interesting findings as follows:

1—When they know where they are going, pigeons fly at tree-top level; when confused, they fly at an altitude of about 1,000 feet.

2—Once released, they do not immediately head for home but "case" the adjoining area in a 10 to 20-minute orientation flight.

3—Even when the flock is flying in the wrong direction, which happens quite often, individual birds who give evidence of sensing the correct way home tend to stick around to watch the fun.

4—Local features of terrain, such as hills, rivers and the like, apparently influence the path of flight, but not the general direction.

Gasoline Stocks At Record High

NEW YORK, March 1—The American Petroleum Institute reported today gasoline stocks reached 136,870,000 barrels for the week ending Feb. 24, an all-time high for gasoline inventories.

According to the institute, gasoline stocks last week jumped 2,272,000 barrels over the previous week.

Gasoline stocks in storage at this time last year totaled 133,

Betty Jean Williams was 9 then, and could not walk a half block without collapsing. She could not go to school. She could not play.

PROCEDURE IS OUTLINED

Birth Certificate Rush Is No Longer Seen Here

Pickaway Counties are no longer scrambling to acquire documentary proof of their existence.

Officials of the county probate court office report that only two or three applications a month are made now for birth registrations, "but during the war they really flocked in."

Throughout World War II the majority of industrial firms and all government offices required employees to furnish birth certificates.

Because registration of the certificates was lax in former years, the war-stiffened rules brought thousands of requests throughout the country for documentary proof of birth.

The mere fact of existence was not enough.

For some government jobs even the fact of existence plus a birth certificate was not enough if the certificate had not been recorded. The tape of governmental procedure may be long and involved, but the color is pretty. It's red.

ACCORDING to probate court officials here, anyone who was born or is now living in Pickaway County can have his birth registered if it is not already recorded.

All he has to do is provide evidence in support of his application. Documentary evidence could be:

1. Affidavit of parents or surviving parent.
2. Affidavit of one relative and one non-relative, or two non-relatives each of whom must be at least five years older than the applicant.
3. Certificate of attendant at birth.
4. Insurance policies of applicant issued prior to 1935 and of at least 10 years standing whether in effect or not.
5. Original baptismal records.
6. Original entry in family Bible made within two years after birth.
7. Military or civil service record issued prior to 1935 and of at least ten years' standing.
8. Marriage record of applicant or parents issued prior to 1935.
9. Birth record of one or both parents.
10. Birth record of child or children of applicant born prior to 1935 and ten years of age or older.
11. Official school record of applicant.
12. Union, lodge or fraternal record of applicant made prior to 1935 and of at least 10 years standing.
13. Certified copy of 1930 census return or any census return prior thereto.
14. Naturalization record of parents.
15. Any other documentary evidence considered valid by the Judge.

Forms for correction of birth records and registration of birth records may be obtained on request from the probate court.

Retailers Eye Newest Price Rule

Markup Plan Due By March 29

WASHINGTON, March 1—Retail establishments handling clothing and home furnishings are getting their affairs in order today for a new government price markup regulation which is to go into effect not later than March 29.

The order, issued by Price Controller Michael Di Salle, covers about 200,000 items in the apparel, furniture, and home furnishings field.

It replaces the Jan. 26 overall price freeze with a freeze and rollback plan applicable only to markups—the margin between a retailer's buying and selling price.

DiSalle predicted that the effect of the new regulation will be more price rollbacks than increases, although he conceded that there would be price rises where retailers have been observing voluntary controls.

He said the price reductions would result from a provision of the regulation whereby retailers will be required to rollback their markups to levels prevailing in the year before the Korean war outbreak, where they have increased markup percentages.

THE NEW ORDER applies to 233,351 retail establishments, including department stores.

They are required, under the new regulation, to prepare charts showing, as of Feb. 24, their cost prices of clothing and home furnishings by categories, their selling prices and the percentage markup of selling price over cost.

This will be their yardstick for future control operations. The Jan. 26 price freeze will apply to them until they have filed this chart with the regional office of price stabilization.

If the store was having a sale on Feb. 24, it will not use the sale markup standard, but the normal pre-Korean margin.

Negro War Hero Killed In Action

NEW YORK, March 1—First Lt. Harry E. Sutton, Negro hero of Sutton's Ridge at Korea's Hungnam beachhead, has been killed in action.

His wife, Mrs. Vannie Sutton, said the government informed her he was struck down by machine gun bullets while leading an infantry charge near Suwon on Feb. 3.

Sutton, 30, an Army veteran of 11 years, won the silver star for gallantry as a rifle platoon leader defending the key ridge in the beachhead operation last December.

Accounts of the battle by war correspondents gave the ridge Lt. Sutton's name.

Pastors Rap Gambling; Grand Jury Gets Call

NEWARK, March 1—Licking County Common Pleas Judge Charles B. Holsberry has announced he will call a special grand jury Tuesday to study charges by the clergy that gambling was rampant in the county.

The Licking County Ministerial Association yesterday declined an official invitation to produce evidence of gambling with the statement that such was not "the duty of private citizens."

An open letter was read from the pulpits of Protestant churches Sunday, charging gambling was rampant in Licking County.

Common Pleas Judge Charles B. Holsberry called a meeting with the association and county officials. He said after the meeting that a special grand jury would be called if the association would produce evidence to back up the charges.

In a formal statement, the association replied that the gathering of evidence was up to law enforcement officials and is not the "duty of private citizens."

TV FREQUENCIES WANTED

Uncle Sam Eyes Give-Away Of Big Batch Of Blue Sky

WASHINGTON, March 1—Uncle Sam, by the end of 1951, will be ready to launch the biggest give-away program on land, sea, radio or television.

Within a matter of months, the Federal Communications Commission will be ready to license approximately 2,500 television stations to such persons or institutions as can qualify.

In reality, Uncle is reading a grab-bag more fabulous than the ten strike at Sutter's Mill, Virginia City or the fabled Golconda rolled into one.

This metropolis, which now thinks in billions with the greatest of ease, is straining at the leash of trillions while it tries to figure out the eventual value of the TV treasure to be whacked up in the spectrum.

The old gentleman is about to divvy up the wild blue yonder, making it wilder than a three-dollar bill in a floating crap game. And the eager, pushing line is already forming on the right, to snatch at the treasure.

THE ONLY FEDERAL freeze in Washington that has stayed frozen more than 24 hours is the deep freeze slapped on the television industry by the Federal Communications Commission in September, 1948.

At that time, the FCC suspended the licensing of further TV stations until it took another look at this new art and learned a little more about its innards and its workings.

That freeze caught the TV industry with 107 stations in operation in the USA. Even so, the growth of TV in the intervening years has been amazing. The number of sets in homes has skyrocketed from 70,000 in 1947 to more than 10 million as of now, even with the medium of a vise.

Now it is expected that the FCC will soon begin the last phase of its long hearings. It recently concluded the general part of its allocation hearings, in which it tried to decide its basic standards, philosophy and educational goals.

The next and probably final phase of these hearings will consist of taking testimony of individuals and institutions representing more than 30 American cities, large and small, which want permission to build and operate TV stations in every nook and cranny of the nation.

No one can say how long this final phase of the FCC hearings will last, but Miss Frieda B. Henck, the only woman on the commission, believes that licensing of TV stations will be resumed by the end of the present year. How rapidly stations can or will be licensed is something else again.

THERE ARE STILL approximately 480 stations to be licensed in the very high frequency range of the spectrum, in which the present 107 American stations are operating.

After these 480 licenses are allocated, the FCC will then open up the ultra high frequency range of the spectrum, in which no U. S. station has been licensed to operate so far. The commission estimates that 2,000 American stations can operate in ultra high frequency.

This makes a total of about 2,500 licenses available for TV stations. That's all there is; there isn't any more, which explains the tremendous value of each license and the reason there is such a mad scramble on here to grab one when the freeze is over.

The establishment of ultra high frequency stations in the not too distant future will require the present owners of America's 10 million TV sets to make some adjustment in the present sets, although not—apparently—as radical as for color reception. The adjustment envisioned for UHF reception includes a new aerial.

The thaw—when it comes—will be one of the most dramatic in the nation's history. The sky is literally the limit for what Uncle Sam has to give away in the near future.

2 More Local Men Sign Up With U.S. Navy

Two Circleville men Tuesday were sworn into the U. S. Navy.

They are Howard Lester Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Smith of 220 East Franklin street, and Robert Jules Hedges, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Hedges of 637 South Court street.

Smith attended Circleville high school, where he was active in football. Prior to enlistment he was employed by his father. Hedges attended Lancaster high school, was active in basketball. Before enlisting he operated a dairy store in Circleville.

Both men will be flown to the Naval Training Center in San Diego, Cal., to start recruit training, according to Navy Recruiter E. D. Bristle.

The "watt," a measure of electricity, is named in honor of James Watt, inventor of the steam engine.

Motorists Bill Aired In Columbus

Responsibility Law Being Pondered

COLUMBUS, March 1—House Bill 168 by Rep. Kenneth F. Berry of Coshocton County is now being considered before the highway committee of the Ohio house of representatives with initial hearings this week.

The measure, patterned after the new security type safety responsibility motorist's law in effect in 25 states is designed to protect Ohio citizens against reckless and financially irresponsible drivers and owners of motor vehicles.

The bill has the active support of the Ohio State Automobile Association, AAA Automobile Clubs and various Ohio safety organizations.

The provisions of the proposed law are entirely different from the old-type financial responsibility law, such as Ohio now has, since it eliminates all delay in invoking the penalties of the law and creates immediate action in protecting the injured.

It requires drivers and owners to make themselves financially responsible or run the risk of losing their right to drive.

ALL MOTOR vehicle owners and operators, including non-residents, when they become involved in an accident in Ohio, resulting in death, injury or property damage to any person are affected.

It becomes operative at once, requiring the driver or the owner of a vehicle involved in an accident to provide immediate security—money, bonds, or standard type of insurance.

He must furnish this security or produce a release indicating settlement of claims within not more than 60 days after the accident.

The bill provides, in case of failure to do so, for instant suspension of license and registration of automobiles.

Those supporting the measure point out that the old type financial responsibility law is not operative until after a judgment has been obtained.

Delays in bringing a case to trial and in obtaining judgment have enabled all too many motorists to remain on the road for years after an accident has taken the toll of life, limb or property, making the present law inadequate.

Rubber Railroad Operation Cost Said Too High

COLUMBUS, March 1—Economic phases of the proposed river-lake conveyor belt line came under attack today by the railroads opposing it before the Ohio senate's judiciary committee.

The attack on the proposed $250 million, 130-mile overland conveyor to haul coal, limestone and iron ore between Lorain and East Liverpool was spearheaded by Maj. Gen. Robert G. Breene, retired Airforce supply officer and now an independent transportation consultant.

Breene charged that belt conveyor costs are abnormally high, spillage presents a nuisance, segregation of shipments virtually impossible, and the problem of starting and stopping the entire system and acceleration at an even rate "possibly insoluble."

He admitted that "given unlimited funds fantastic engineering projects are mechanically and functionally sound," but criticized costs of existing belt lines to show they were too high.

He cited the cost of operating the two-mile Anderson Ranch dam conveyor belt in Idaho at 14 cents a ton-mile and that of the seven-mile Bull Shoals project in Arkansas at seven cents.

TV-Radio Programs

Programs listed in the following television log contain errors daily, the fault resting entirely with broadcasters and not with The Herald. Intent of this newspaper is to provide accurate information for subscribers, but finds this impossible so far as the three Columbus television stations are concerned. The programs printed are assembled from information sent out by the Columbus stations and are not to be regarded seriously. Complaints about inaccuracies in program listings should be made to the broadcasting stations and not to The Herald. Because of continuing inaccuracies, The Herald has been forced to delete all TV programs prior to 6 p. m. Radio programs are evening network listings.

Teaching Dope Habit To Child Brings Jail Term

NEWARK, March 1—Angelina Guerrini, 21, has been sentenced to a year in jail on testimony that she attempted to teach the dope habit to a 12-year-old girl.

Magistrate Milton Jacobs lashed the defendant as "the most vicious" dope peddler in Newark and said she was "a menace to anyone with whom she came in contact."

Detectives were led to Angelina by the girl whose name was withheld. The child, who became ill, told her mother, "Angelina gave me some stuff to put up my nose which tickled."

The girl later ran away and police found her in Angelina's room sniffing heroin.

Police Captain John Sweeney

told the court that Angelina also made dope addicts out of two boys, one 16 and the other 17.

British Sergeant Given Sentence

KLagenfurt, Austria, March 1—A British court martial convicted British Army Sergeant John Dempsey of espionage charges yesterday and sentenced him to 10 years of imprisonment.

When the trial of Dempsey, 28, began two days ago in secrecy it was believed that he had been charged with spying for Russia. But the official announcement said only that he was found guilty of three violations of the British Official Secrets Act and 38 other charges, including theft and possession of false documents.

Cancer In Males More Deadly Than In Females

CLEVELAND, March 1—An official of the American Cancer Society reports that male cancer deaths now exceed female because cancers among men are more difficult to treat and are easily confused with other internal disorders.

Dr. Charles S. Cameron of New York declared here that the most recent statistics available show that 102,671 men died of cancer in 1949, compared with 101,980 women.

The ACS medical and scientific director, who is attending a two-day meeting of the society's board of directors, explained that presently only one-third of male cancer is readily accessible to diagnosis and treatment, while two-thirds of female cancer is accessible.

"Since cancer is highly curable when detected early and treated promptly," he continued, "the disease in accessible female sites such as the breast and uterus show much better cure rates than hidden cancers such as stomach cancers which predominate in the male."

Dr. Cameron also pointed out that greater accuracy today in diagnosing causes of death has helped alter the male - female cancer fatality statistics.

Today, internal cancer is more likely to be recognized as more than it was 50 years ago, he explained.

Columbus Firm Awarded Contract

COLUMBUS, March 1—The Clark Grave Vault Company in Columbus was reported today to have received a $12,000,000 government contract to provide an estimated 30,000,000 square feet of steel landing mats.

The firm made landing mats for the government during the last war. The company employs 1200 persons and works three shifts. An additional 300 workers are expected to be hired.

Seasonal Decline, Weather Blamed For Idle Claim Jump

$15,424.50 Paid Out In January

But Says Claims Average $23.20

Weather conditions plus normal seasonal declines in farming, canning and construction work were blamed for increases in the number of new and continued claims for unemployment compensation filed in Pickaway County in January.

Mary Wolf, local Bureau of Unemployment Compensation clerk, said 205 new claims were filed in January, compared to 158 in December.

She said continued claims jumped from 687 in December to 1,120 last month.

Unemployed workers in the county received $15,424.50 in unemployment compensation during January, according to C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager.

The total payments went to claimants drawing benefits under both the Ohio Law and veterans eligible for servicemen's readjustment allowances under the federal GI Bill of Rights, Thomas said.

CLAIMANTS DRAWING benefits under the Ohio Law received a total of $15,353.50. Of this amount, $1,267.50 was in dependency allowances received by claimants who were eligible for such payments.

The average weekly check paid to claimants in January was $23.20.

Last month the local BUC office was visited by 2,176 persons. The figure for the previous month was 1,547.

Also last month the office made 35 placements in local industry, 12 of these being agricultural.

Thomas made 38 employer visits, while Walton W. Spangler, farm placement representative made two agricultural visits.

During December, 1950, a total of $11,943 was paid out in unemployment benefits in Pickaway County. For the whole of 1950 a total of $203,437 was paid out, Miss Wolf said.

She added that the average weekly number of benefit recipients in 1950 was 178, while the average weekly benefit was $22.63.

Of the total amount of unemployment compensation benefits $14,812.50 was for dependents allowances only.

A total of 563 placements was made during the year, of which 119 were agricultural placements.

THOMAS REVEALED that graduates of 83 colleges and universities, located in 23 states and one foreign land, found work through the employment service of the BUC in January.

Included in the 211 placements of college-trained workers were 21 engineers, nine accountants, five teachers, physicians, chemists, reporters, personnel men, dietitians, clerical workers, insurance salesmen and other types of salesmen. These are part of the group of over 1600 college graduates who have been placed in jobs since June 1, 1950, when the Employment Service began to record college placements separately.

Some of these college graduates were experienced. Still others were fresh from college. Salaries ranged downward from better than $7000 for some experienced graduates to $1 an hour for temporary placements. Salaries averaged about $250 a month for the entire group.

Evidence provided by the January placements, with the openings in the current State Inventory of Jobs, indicates that hundreds of jobs are waiting for qualified college graduates, with all types of training from accountants to welding engineers, Thomas said.

Kidnap Story Labeled Hoax

LOWELL, Mass., March 1—A pretty 20-year-old blonde staggered into Lowell police headquarters yesterday bleeding from some 100 slashes and said they were inflicted by a man who kidnapped her.

Today in St. John's hospital the girl, who identified herself as Lillian M. O'Keefe, admitted the kidnaping story was a hoax. Police quoted her as saying she caused the wounds with a razor blade because she had lost her job and hadn't eaten in two days.

Dr. John Maloney said her condition was satisfactory despite the cuts on her chest, thighs and legs.

Farm Bureau Renames Woods

COLUMBUS, March 1—The Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative Association closed its annual meeting here yesterday with the reelection of W. Norton Woods of Maumee as president.

Also reelected were Dwight Heckathorn of Forest, vice-president; John W. Sims of Vickery, executive vice-president; H. N. Wilson of Columbus, secretary, and K. N. Probasco, treasurer. ### Ohio Truckers Ask 24-Hour Weighing COLUMBUS, March 1—The Ohio Trucking Association is on record today as favoring establishment of around-the-clock weighing stations on all of the state's principal highways.

A resolution to that effect received the unanimous approval of OTA members yesterday at their 32nd annual convention in Columbus.

The resolution was proposed by C. J. Madigan of Cleveland, a member of the OTA board of directors. He said "something concrete" is needed to indicate publicly that the industry wants trucking laws enforced.

He said: "We must show the legislature we want to regulate our own industry."
